It's time to give America a raise. Drop your signed petition off at any Amalgamated branch or sign online at amalgamatedbank.com/raisethewage.

Dear Members of Congress:

There are 45.3 million hardworking Americans who live in poverty in part because the federal minimum wage of $7.25 an hour is too low. I support raising the minimum wage to a living wage. No one who works full time should live in poverty.

ASSAD VISITS MOSCOW

2 Vladimir Putin used a rare visit to Moscow by Syrian President Bashar al-Assad to talk up the Kremlin's potential to help broker a political settlement to the crisis as he tried to show the West Russia has become a major player in the Middle East. Assad flew to Moscow to thank Putin personally for his military support, in a surprise visit that Russian state media cast as a diplomatic coup. It was Assad's first foreign visit since the start of the Syrian crisis in 2011. REUTERS

The man who allegedly shot and killed Police Officer Randolph Holder was wanted for questioning in a September shooting and had 18 prior arrests, the NYPD said on Wednesday. Police said Howard — who did two stints in upstate prisons for drugs — was currently in a diversion program.

Howard had an active warrant for a fatal shooting in the East River Houses on Sept. 1, police said, and did not show up to a court date in the middle of September.

Manhattan DA Cy Vance said in a statement he was "deeply angered and saddened by the senseless murder" and recommended a prison sentence, not diversion, for Howard.

Holder, 33, died after being shot in the head in East Harlem Tuesday night. Howard was charged Wednesday night with first-degree murder and first-degree robbery.

Just before 9 p.m. Tuesday, officers patrolling the roof of a nearby housing complex spotted people firing weapons at each other, according to Dept. Chief William Aubrey, the commanding officer of Detective Borough Manhattan.

A host of officers responded and Howard fled on foot toward the FDR Drive, stopping to rob someone of a bicycle at gunpoint.

Howard pedaled north on the promenade. When Holder and another officer cut him off at a pedestrian ramp, Howard allegedly put down the bike and fired one shot at them, striking Holder in the head.

Officer Omar Wallace returned fire, hitting Howard in the leg. Howard fled and was apprehended on the FDR Drive between 124th and 125th streets.

Holder was taken to Harlem Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 10:22 p.m.

Howard was treated for his wounds and brought to the 25th Precinct station house Wednesday afternoon for lineups before being charged.

Holder, who was born in Guyana, was a five-year veteran of the NYPD. His father and grandfather were law enforcement ofsuspect charged with murder

ficers in Guyana.

"I feel so bad," said Maria Felix, who lives in the neighborhood where Holder patrolled and was killed. "I feel so bad. I've seen him from time to time around here. Nice guy."

"I would never think something would happen like this around here. I was scared to send my kids to school," said Katiria Torres. "They go to school right across, but I am so sad about the cop. They are here to protect us. I'm just glad they caught the guy and I don't know if there are other guys in it. It's just so sad because he was so young."

Police Commissioner Bill Bratton said it was the officer's father who comforted him after Holder's death, and offered to greet a room of grieving officers keeping vigil.

"I've lost count," Bratton said of the number of officers' funerals he's attended over the course of his career. "And I'll be frank with you, it gets worse each time."

"There are a small number of people — they number in the thousands — who perpetrate so much of the violence in the city," Mayor Bill de Blasio said at a press conference. "And we will not stop in the relentless pursuit of this violent few."

"There's a disconnect in our society, that somehow people who say they believe in law and order still support the notion of the free flow of weapons,

Services for Holder

A wake will be held for Holder on Oct. 27 with a funeral scheduled for the next day. He will be buried in his native Guyana.

and so often it is our officers who pay the price."

Bratton said he was scheduled to travel to Washington, D.C., and meet with President Barack Obama on the issue of keeping violent offenders in prison.

"This individual that we believe murdered our police officer, your police officer ... that he's what we're talking about, people who engage constantly in violence but we seem to have the hardest time trying to keep them in jail or prison."

Holder is the fourth NYPD officer killed in the last 11 months. Last December, Det. Wenjian Liu and Rafael Ramos were shot and killed while sitting in their patrol car in Bed-Stuy. In June, Det. Brian Moore was shot in Queens by a suspect who fired into his car.

Bratton said Wednesday he didn't see a connection between the four shootings, other than they occurred in a short period of time to one another.

Both Mayor de Blasio and Gov. Andrew Cuomo have ordered city and state flags to half-staff until Holder is buried.

Holder, three others killed within year

Four NYPD officers were fatally shot in the past 10 months.

CHESTER SORIA
@chestersoria
chester.soria@metro.us

Officer Randolph Holder is the fourth NYPD officer to be shot and killed while on the job within the last year.

The 33-year-old, who was shot in the forehead Oct. 21 while attempting to catch an armed robber, died around 10:22 p.m. at Harlem Hospital. His shooter, identified as Tyrone Howard, was left with gunshot wounds to his legs and remained in police custody.

Holder was on the job for five years, joining the force in 2010. He is survived by his father, who served as a police officer in their native Guyana.

Police apprehended three other men, all of whom were being questioned by investigators Wednesday.

Officer Moore

Officer Brian Moore, 25, died May 4 after he was shot in the head days earlier while on patrol with his partner in Queens. Moore was in an unmarked car May 2 when he and his partner noticed suspect Demetrius Blackwell adjust his waistband around 6:15 p.m. When the officers tried to approach him, Blackwell fired into the police car at least twice.

Moore, the son of an NYPD officer, served five years with the department. In July, Queens Village residents said they would rename the intersection of 222nd Street and 92nd Road after Moore.

Blackwell, who was caught by police 90 minutes after the shooting, was indicted for murder in June. He remains in custody without bail.

Officers Liu and Ramos

Officers Wenjian Liu, 32, and Rafael Ramos, 40, were killed on Dec. 20 by a gunman while they sat in their patrol car in Bed-Stuy. Investigators said the shooter, Ismaiyil Brinsley, drove to Brooklyn from Baltimore and announced on social media that he planned to kill police before he fatally shot Liu and Ramos.

Liu served seven years on the job and is survived by his wife, whom he was married to for less than three months before his death.

Ramos, who joined the NYPD after years as a school safety agent, was with NYPD only three years. He left a wife and two sons behind.

Brinsley killed himself following his attack on Ramos and Liu after attempting to escape from the scene and running into a nearby subway station.

Other officer deaths & injuries

While four officers have been shot and killed, others have passed away or been attacked while on duty in recent years.

Officer Dennis Guerra died from complications after escaping from a blaze in a Coney Island apartment building with his partner in April 2014.

His partner, Officer Rosa Rodriguez, survived after weeks of medical attention. The teenager accused of setting the fire was charged with second-degree murder.

Four Queens cops survived an October 2014 attack from a hatchet-wielding man, including rookie Officer Kenneth Healey — who bore the brunt of a swipe of the weapon to his head and hand.

The attacker was shot and killed immediately after the assault.

In January 2015, two police officers were shot — Officer Aliro Pelle-rano in the elbow and Officer Andrew Dossi in the back — responding to a robbery in the Bronx. Both survived the shootout, and investigators tracked down two suspects, who were arrested for the shooting and robbery.

BRIEF

Alleged subway perv masturbates on Manhattan platform before pulling gun on witness Cops want to track down a well-dressed man who witnesses said masturbated in front of a woman on a Manhattan subway platform on Monday.

Investigators said a 38-year-old woman stood on the southbound N and R train platform at the Fifth Avenue station when she heard a hissing sound at around midnight.

The woman told officers she turned around and saw the unidentified suspect masturbating with his penis outside his pants.

Authorities said the woman began to cry as the man walked away from the station, prompting a second male bystander to ask the woman what happened.

The good Samaritan heard the woman's story and started to track down the subway creep.

The man then took his cellphone out and began to videotape the suspect before he left the station.

That's when police said the suspect pulled out a black handgun and told the man to mind his own business before he walked out of the station.

No one was injured, but cops want to track down the man, who was last seen wearing a gray suit with a white-collared shirt. METRO

Critics worry that the state's new certification test will delay treatment.

CHESTER SORIA

Doctors looking to prescribe marijuana-derived medicine to patients under New York state's new program can get online certification within four hours — which critics worry might not be fast enough.

The state Health Department announced its training program is now available online for physicians hoping to prescribe treatment with the medical marijuana program set to launch in January.

A four-hour course administered by a medical website called TheAnswerPage will cost doctors $249 to take a three-module certification class focused on the ins and outs of marijuana as well as side effects of drug interaction and potential abuse or dependence.

"I am confident that the course will provide practitioners with the information they need when considering the use of medical marijuana for patients who may benefit from it," said Commissioner of Health Dr. Howard Zucker in a statement.

Julie Netherland, deputy director of New York's Drug Policy Alliance chapter, cautioned that the state needs to step up its efforts to help more New Yorkers as soon as the program launches.

"If the state is going to meet their January deadline of providing medical marijuana to qualified patients," Netherland wrote in a statement, "they'll need to do some aggressive outreach to get doctors enrolled, through the course, and registered to certify patients."

The state Health Department did not respond to Metro's request for information on feedback from applicants or what kind of outreach the agency might do within the next three months.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed off on the medical marijuana program in July 2014 after officials worked out what some describe as the strictest set of regulations for the drug, which can only be prescribed for "severe, debilitating or life-threatening conditions."

"It is complicated and it required a nuanced approach," Cuomo said at the time.

The medication will only be available through non-smoking delivery systems, such as oils, edibles and vaporizers, and will only be available from 20 sanctioned dispensaries across the state.

St. Louis County plans new rules for dozens of police forces

The executive of St. Louis County proposed new rules for police Wednesday in the 57 towns and cities in Missouri's largest metropolitan area in the wake of complaints of racial profiling and unfair fines and fees.

The proposals come weeks after a federal report found that abusive policing had strained relations between minorities and the mostly white St. Louis County Police Department and made more than 100 recommendations for changes.

St. Louis County Executive Steve Stenger said in a statement he would present the bill to the county council Tuesday and the new standards would go into effect within six months for police in dozen of municipalities.

The rules would bring officer recruiting and training and use-of-force policies in line with basic standards. Such rules are already in place at the St. Louis County Police Department, county officials said.

The police killing of Michael Brown, an 18-year-old unarmed African-American, in the St. Louis suburb of Ferguson in August 2014 triggered a national movement over policing and race. The fatal shooting by a white police officer was found to be justified

The Department of Justice studied the St. Louis County Police Department and recommended it address minority underrepresentation; enhance training, with a focus on fair and impartial policing and community engagement; reduce use of force; and work to ensure racial profiling does not occur.

Residents of two St. Louis suburbs have sued city governments claiming officials have abused and exploited impoverished people through onerous traffic fines and court fees. REUTERS initiated because Lucas Leonard wanted to leave the congregation, District Attorney Scott McNamara said.

The teenager's testimony came during a hearing for his half-sister Sarah Ferguson, 33, in New Hartford Town Court. He spoke quietly in court and kept his head down while answering questions from attorneys.

He said the church's pastor, Tiffany Irwin, organized the counseling session and asked the boys questions. He did not elaborate on the nature of the questions.

Initially, the brothers answered the questions willingly but when they began to resist, the meeting turned violent, he said.

The teenagers' parents, Bruce Leonard, 65, and Deborah Leonard, 59, have been charged with first-degree manslaughter in the death of Lucas Leonard. They are being held at Oneida County Correctional Facility in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Parishioners Joseph Irwin, 26, Linda Morey, 54, and David Morey, 26, are also charged with second-degree assault in connection with Christopher Leonard's beating.

An upstate New York teenager told a court Wednesday that members of his family and others struck him in the genitals and on other parts of his body during in a brutal attack at a secretive upstate church that killed his older brother.

His testimony by Christopher Leonard, 17, was the first public description of last week's attack by the teenager, who was recently released from a hospital where he was treated for blunt force injuries to most of his body.

Leonard and his brother Lucas, 19, were beaten during a counseling session at the Word of Life Church in Chadwicks, New York, about 50 miles east of Syracuse, authorities said.

The alleged assault, which began late Oct. 11 in the church's "sanctuary room" and lasted more than 10 hours, was

Logistics system may delay US F-35 fielding

Final development and testing of a Lockheed Martin Corp. computer-based logistics system for the F-35 fighter jet may be delayed by 30 to 60 days, which could impede the U.S. Air Force's ability to declare its jets ready for combat by Aug. 1, the Pentagon said on Wednesday.

Air Force Lieutenant General Chris Bogdan, who runs the $391 billion F-35 program for the Pentagon, said his office was "closely tracking" for the target date of Aug. 1, 2016, but he said there were "a number of risks" that needed to be addressed to meet the goal.

Chief among those risks, he said, was completion of development and testing of the next version of the Autonomic Logistics Information System, or ALIS, which will consolidate many functions handled separately on older aircraft programs.

ALIS will automatically capture and disseminate data about the F-35's performance and components, pilot and technician training, scheduling, technical data, and the ordering of parts.

Ryan, right wing spar over speakership, deadlines loom

Ryan has said he will seek the top House job but only under certain conditions, including receiving the endorsements of conservative factions.

Paul Ryan tried to win over hard-line conservatives on Wednesday in his bid to become the next speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives as fellow Republicans quarreled over how to avoid a historic default on Washington's soaring government debt.

Coming within days if Congress fails to act, a default could shake the markets and the economy, but the Republican-controlled Congress had no clear plan to prevent it, and was consumed by an intra-party power struggle expected to extend into next week.

The nine-term congressman spent much of Wednesday in private meetings with these factions to try to nail down their support. He was scheduled to hold a crucial meeting in the late afternoon with the right-wing Freedom Caucus, a small but vocal splinter group of about 40 of the House's 247 Republican members.

If enough Freedom Caucus members withhold their support, Ryan might walk away from the race to replace Speaker John Boehner, who is slated to retire on Oct. 30. Boehner has set Oct. 28 for Republicans to pick a nominee and Oct. 29 for the full House to vote for a new speaker.

The leadership struggle has dragged on since Boehner's surprise retirement announcement in late September, even as a Nov. 3 deadline approached for Congress to act on the federal debt limit and a Dec. 11 deadline drew near for enacting new funding to keep federal agencies operating.

Underscoring concerns about these deadlines and the absence of any plan to confront them, U.S. Treasury Secretary Jack Lew said he feared a fiscal policy "accident" if debt brinkmanship continued as the country edged closer to a possible default.

Kerry to meet Israel's Netanyahu in Berlin

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry will meet with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in Berlin on Thursday at the outset of a trip aimed at finding ways to ease the violence between Israelis and Palestinians, the State Department said on Wednesday.

State Department spokesman John Kirby said Kerry would be looking for practical ways to end the recent surge in violence between Israelis and Palestinians, and he reiterated that Kerry wanted to see both sides moving away from rhetoric and actions that incite violence.

Kirby's comments came just hours after Netanyahu provoked a Holocaust controversy on Wednesday by saying that Haj Amin al-Husseini, the Muslim elder in Jerusalem during the 1940s, convinced Adolf Hitler to exterminate the Jews.

Opposition politicians and Holocaust experts criticized the remarks and accused Netanyahu of distorting the historical record. A German government spokesman said the Holocaust was Germany's responsibility and there was no need for another view on it.

Kirby declined to characterize Netanyahu's comments as potentially inciting, but he said scholarly evidence on the Holocaust does not support the prime minister's view. Kirby said Kerry also would meet with German and EU officials while in Berlin before traveling on Friday to Vienna for talks on the ongoing conflict in Syria with his Russian, Turkish and Saudi counterparts. Shoulder Arthritis Treatments Keeping Boomers Active Into Their 60's, 70's Even 80's?

If you suffer with painful shoulder arthritis — science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here is why: Researchers have discovered an natural gel like medicine that is like "joint oil." This all-natural gel is one of the naturally occurring lubricating substances in your shoulder joint that cushions and lubricates the joint which dries out over time due to wear-and-tear, age or injury. But when doctors precisely place this lubricating gel into your shoulder joint by using advanced digital imaging technology — it is like putting oil on a rusty door hinge. It lubricates the joint and can decrease pain and stiffness. For some, results can be dramatic and last for months. Years for some. Often times shoulder surgery can be avoided.

Know this: This is NOT a supplement you can buy over the counter or on the internet. This is a REAL medical treatment that must be given by a trained health care professional.

And the great news is: There is a free report and information kit available that tells you everything you need to know about this treatment. It also tells you all about cutting-edge medical clinics right here in New York City that are offering this cutting-edge treatment with tremendous success.

To get your information kit or to schedule a No-Obligation Risk Free Shoulder Screening simply call 800-627-PAIN (7246).

Judge approves plan to reform New York's Rikers Island jails

District Judge Laura Taylor Swain called the settlement between the city, the U.S. Justice Department and a group of inmates a "groundbreaking" result.

"The settlement provides an important example for other correctional systems around the country." Swain

New York City will carry out systemic reforms at its troubled Rikers Island jail complex to resolve claims that guards regularly used unnecessary force against inmates, under the terms of a settlement approved by a federal judge on Wednesday.

District Judge Laura Taylor Swain added she looked forward to seeing "rapid and meaningful progress" in reports to be submitted by a federal monitor appointed to oversee the reforms.

Rikers Island, which has 10 jails and one of the largest U.S. jail complexes with around 10,000 prisoners daily, has been the focus of intense scrutiny over safety and security issues.

Dozens of guards have in recent years faced criminal charges for an array of offenses including assaulting inmates and smuggling contraband.

gling contraband.

Mayor Bill de Blasio's administration has made it a priority to reform the city's jails, which a report by the city comptroller's office on Friday said have seen rising levels of violence despite a declining inmate population.

Under the agreement, which was announced in June, the city will install 7,800 surveillance cameras throughout Rikers and, as part of pilot program, have some guards wear body cameras.

The city will also develop an early warning system to identify guards who may warrant corrective actions and a computerized system to track use-of-force incidents.

The agreement also calls for improved training, recruitment and promotion practices and changes to how teenage inmates are treated, something the city had already begun tackling.

The settlement followed a 2014 Department of Justice report that described a pattern of violent abuse of male inmates aged 16 to 18 by jail staff.

The Justice Department subsequently intervened in December in a class action filed in 2011 accusing the New York City Department of Correction of a pattern of using excessive force against inmates.

Migrants wait to cross the border between Serbia and Croatia on Wednesday. GETTY IMAGES

Bad weather, border closures add to plight of Balkans migrants

On the Croatian-Serbian border, thousands of migrants spent the night camped out at the Berkasovo-Bapska crossing after Croatia closed the gates.

Refugees from Asian wars crossed into Slovenia from Croatia as border closures elsewhere forced them to find new routes to rich European countries and concern grew over the plight of those stranded in wet, freezing weather.

And in an indication that refugees and migrants were still desperate to reach Europe before winter weather made sea crossings too perilous, two boatloads landed at a British military base on Cyprus — the first such arrivals on the island.

With many now trapped in deteriorating conditions in the Balkans, European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker called an extraordinary meeting of several European leaders to take place on Sunday.

Juncker invited the leaders of Austria, Bulgaria, Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Romania, Serbia and Slovenia.

“In view of the unfolding emergency in the countries along the Western Balkans migratory route, there is a need for much greater cooperation, more extensive consultation and immediate operational action,” the commission said in a statement.

Europe’s biggest refugee and migrant crisis since World War II has seen hundreds of thousands of people fleeing war and poverty in the Middle East, Asia and Africa this year, with hundreds losing their lives in risky voyages across the Mediterranean.

Hungary sealed its border with Croatia last week, blocking entry with a steel fence and razor wire. Croatia began diverting migrants west to Slovenia, which has tried to stem the flow as people looked for new routes and bottlenecks built up through the Balkans.

Both Slovenia and Hungary are part of Europe’s passport-free Schengen Area while Croatia is not. Most want to continue their journey on to Austria and Germany. REUTERS

Nothing saves a marriage like a coma

Crisis and tragedy can really help put things in perspective. Like when you're in the midst of getting a divorce but then your soon-to-be ex-husband lands in the hospital after a four-day bender at a Nevada brothel and you think maybe you two can go the distance after all. At least, that's what I imagine is going through Khloe Kardashian's mind this week, as according to TMZ she and Lamar Odom asked a judge to dismiss their divorce case — and it totally worked. Kardashian's lawyer reportedly appeared in court Wednesday with a document signed by both parties asking for the filing to be withdrawn. While Odom continues to make an impressive recovery following his four-day coma, their 2-year-old divorce battle "is now dead," a source says. I see what they did there. And hey, it's nice to hear Odom has progressed to "able to sign important legal documents" condition so fast.

Magical second-generation Hollywood quote machine Jaden Smith is back with some wonderful pronouncements, in case you needed a pick-me-up. In a chat with GQ, Smith admits that he's dedicated to "being, like, one of the craziest human beings to ever exist," so don't worry about offending him when you call him nuts. "It's fun, bro. That's what a lot of people don't realize," he explains. "I feel like it's an honor, actually, for people to think I'm crazy. Because they thought Galileo was crazy, too, you know what I'm saying? I don't think I'm as revolutionary as Galileo, but I don't think I'm not as revolutionary as Galileo."

He also has aspirations toward cryptic, not-quite-anonymous altruism, because of course. "It'll be kind of like Banksy," Smith explains. "But in a different way. More of a social impact. Helping people, but through art installations. It'll be like, 'This just happened that helped a bunch of people over here. We don't know who did it, but these symbols and things were left around, so we can only guess that it's Jaden and the squad.'"

Bad teacher

Olivia Wilde struggles in "Meadowland." CINEDIGM ENTERTAINMENT

Olivia Wilde sells tragedy and remorse in "Meadowland."

NED EHRBAR
@Nedrick
ned.ehrbar@metro.us

With "Meadowland," Olivia Wilde pulls double duty as both lead actress — playing opposite Luke Wilson as parents facing the fallout of unimaginable loss — and producer. Wilde worked closely with cinematographer-turned-director Reed Moreno on bringing the indie drama to life.

How do you psych yourself up for taking on a role that's so raw and unpleasant?

I had quite a long time to prepare because there was a long, challenging process of putting this film together that allowed me to work on the character of Sarah for more than a year. That was a gift because by the time we got to set, I was prepared to dive right into the depths of her experience. I was just warmed up, which is something that you don't usually have the chance to do as an actor. Casting can happen quite quickly, productions move very fast, and we don't always have a lot of time to prepare. But in this one, I was warmed up and ready.

Have you ever had that much prep time before?

No, never. I think the role of producer on this film also allowed my performance to reach another level because I felt a responsibility to this character and to this production. It's a lot of pressure but also it's a kind of shove into your greatest work because you know that you're lucky to have a day of production. After you produce something, you understand how difficult it is to put something together.

It's a miracle that any movie gets made.

Sarah is a teacher, a job where you're expected to have your s— together.

Sarah is a terrible teacher. That's a choice we made, that Sarah would not be a great teacher because she's not able to connect. She's hollow.

Do you think she was a good teacher before?

I don't think she was ever a great teacher. I don't think she ever wanted to be a teacher. She's not going to last long in that job. I don't think she goes back after the film ends.

Wilde

You've now got some direct experience in making indie film. What does it take now to actually get something made?

I think what needs to happen is more independent financing companies need to be started by people who are really excited to champion new filmmakers and who enjoy facilitating those projects without necessarily wanting them to fit any sort of template that they've seen before that has been successful. I think the most interesting work is made by people who aren't trying to copy anything that's been made before. We need more financiers that are interested in that, in supporting filmmakers in whatever they want to do. It's a risky investment, but it's incredibly important to society, I would argue. So that's what needs to happen for independent film. It's all about financiers taking risks and allowing filmmakers to have the power.

Hasan Minhaj's one-man show explores what it was like to grow up as an immigrant in a Muslim family. CANDREW KIST

Hasan Minhaj brings his life to the stage in "Homecoming King."

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

There's a moment in comedian Hasan Minhaj's new one-man show "Homecoming King" when he makes clear that he knows exactly who to thank when it comes to how he ended up on "The Daily Show." That person? Ben Affleck.

It was the actor's now-famous televised confrontation last fall, in which he called Bill Maher and atheist writer Sam Harris "gross and racist" because of their stereotyping of Islam, that caught the attention of Muslim-Americans everywhere — including Minhaj.

That moment also led to a much-needed creative breakthrough. At the time, the 30-year-old comedian had just been asked to a second

"Daily Show" audition, with Jon Stewart. There was only one problem: He had to come up with entirely new material. He struggled until catching Affleck's appearance on "Real Time with Bill Maher." Everything came together quickly after that and "Batman vs. Bill Maher" was born.

"Ben Affleck, I love you," Minhaj exclaims at one point. "You may not be the hero we want, but you're the hero the Muslim world needs! We have Batman!"

Growing up as an outsider

Most of "Homecoming King" has little to do with celebrity and much to do with the Indian-American Minhaj's experience growing up as a second-generation immigrant in tiny Davis, California, where his parents moved shortly before his birth. "Do you know anyone who had a good time on the [school] bus?" Minhaj asks his audience. "It's like racist 'Inception.'"

Homecoming King

Through Nov. 15

A story of family

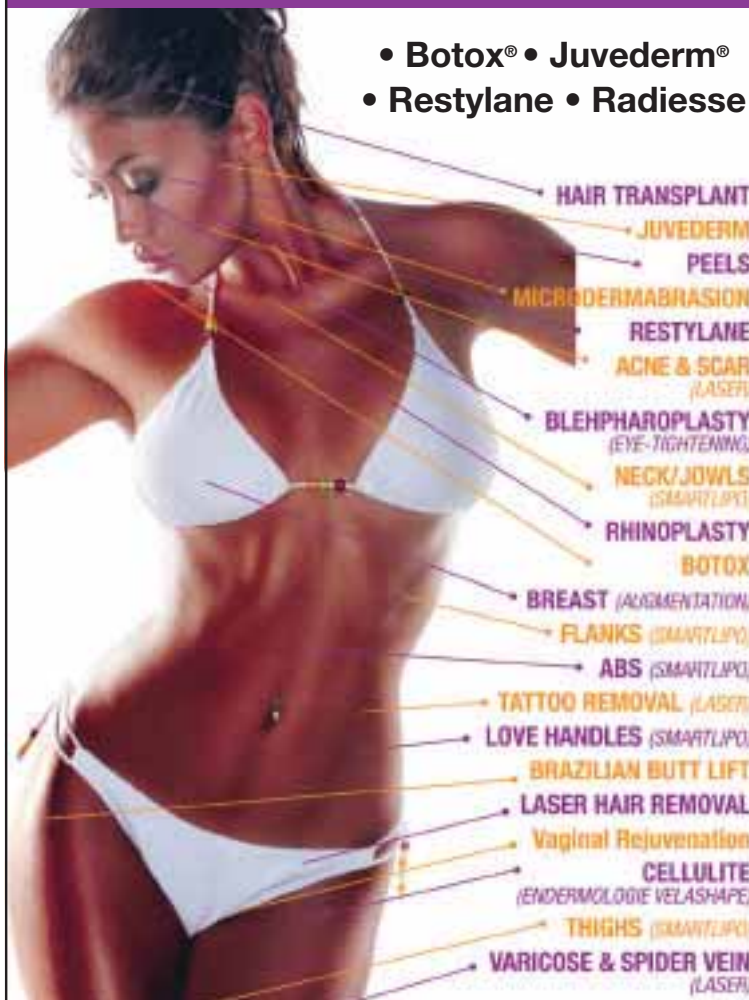

There is also a lot of forgiveness when it comes to Minhaj's relationship with his father. Like many immigrant parents, the older Minhaj tried to protect his son by laying down the law, forbidding partying, stressing school and concealing most emotions. But as Hasan prepares to get married himself, he begins to see his parents in a newer, kinder light. "I just hope that they are proud," he says quietly — the hope of most kids, wherever they're from.

The 'hopeful road' is paying off for the Vintage Trouble

The rhythm & blues band finally has the attention of a major label after five years of being independent.

LINDA LABAN
letters@metro.us

Besides opening for AC/DC's mega-stadium tours in Europe and North America, and playing the Glastonbury Festival in England, primitive soul band Vintage Trouble released their major label debut, "1 Hopeful Rd." in August on legendary label Blue Note Records. But none of this could be called an overnight success: "1 Hopeful Rd.," the Los Angeles band's second album, is the result of years of honing individual craftsmanship and songwriting, and it unites older and brand new songs.

"The record is a combination of songs we've written from three years ago to three months ago," says Ty Taylor, Vintage Trouble's powerhouse vocalist. "It was nice to have songs come at the eleventh hour, so we have something representative of where we are now," he says of wrapping the recording

Vintage Trouble has played to crowds of 150,000, but are gearing up to play a more intimate show this Friday.
BLUE NOTE RECORDS

sessions with producer and veteran musician Don Was, who is also the CEO of Blue Note Records.

There really is a Hopeful Road

The second album's upbeat title is a play on a lyric from the album's opening song, "Run Like the River." "The first line is 'One hopeful road that my mother showed me.' In the song, it's a regular sentence; then when we were looking at album titles, we thought it would be cool to change it to an actual address — so we put in the number one and changed it to a road," Taylor says. "But it turns out there is an actual Hopeful Road in Alabama — so I hope those people aren't hating us if people are camping out in front of their house," he jokes.

Vintage Trouble hit the road for Glastonbury and AC/DC

This fall, Vintage Trouble is headlining shows across the U.S., which sees them playing cozier stages rather than the stadiums packed with 150,000 AC/DC fans. The rush of that tour

With Christmas lights already popping up, I'm reminded of all the shopping I need to do and the money I'll spend during the holiday season. Since staying in isn't an option for me, I'm revisiting some wonderful bars that will actually keep my tab low. Here's where to go tonight and still have money left over for that purse mom has been talking about.

B Side

204 Ave. B, Alphabet City
B Side always delivers, with $3-$4 beers and half-price well drinks plus additional savings on select brews from 3-8 p.m. daily. The front bar is small but there is a larger room in the back that has a foosball table. It's one of those places that's as comfortable as your own living room and never seems to get overly crowded. Most patrons take advantage of the $5 PBR and whiskey deal. Why not?

International Bar

120 ½ First Ave., East Village
Every day, bask in the glory of $3-$4 beers and $4 well drinks. Small, cheap, dark and friendly. Enough said. International is a perfect hole-in-the-wall bar for an affordable night of drinking, interesting conversation and a great crowd. As a bonus you can relax on the backyard patio (until 10 p.m.). Leave your tie at home.

1020 Bar

1020 Amsterdam Ave., Morningside Heights
For those who like bar games, look no further. 1020 offers cheap drinks, a pool table and a dartboard. Columbia students flock here for daily deals like $2-$3 beers and $4-$5 well drinks. There are always affordable drinks on the menu and friendly bartenders. This is a no-frills corner neighborhood bar with booth seating and awesome prices. They don't serve food, but you can order in.

Halloween treat recipes to try with your kids

Have fun in the kitchen by making these spooktacular sweets for Halloween.

EMILY LAURENCE
@Emlaurence
emily.laurence@metro.us

Scoring mounds of candy trick-or-treating is a big part of the Halloween fun, but nothing beats something homemade. Get into the festive spirit by trying one of these easy recipes with your kids. Not only is the end result seriously impressive, your kids will take pride in knowing they had a hand in helping make the yummy snacks.

These are just two recipes from Katie Wylie's book, "Kids' Treats: 50 Easy, Extra-Special Snacks to Make with Your Little Ones." Check out the book for more treat ideas.

MONSTER RICE CEREAL TREATS

Rice cereal treats are one of the easiest goodies you can make, which is great because when creating with kids, simple is always best. These Halloween-themed treats put on a monster of a costume for the season and are a favorite among kids! Sometimes the best treats are the easiest — and the ones that are the most fun — to make.

Ingredients:

Yields 12–18 Monster Treats

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 (10 oz) package marshmallows
- 6 cups Rice Krispies cereal
- Cooking spray
- 1 tablespoon sprinkles
- 12–18 mini Oreo
- 1 (3.5 oz) tube black glaze icing gel

Directions:

1 In a large saucepan, melt butter over medium heat. Add marshmallows and stir until completely melted. Remove from heat.

2 Add rice cereal to butter and marshmallow mixture and stir to combine.

3 Press mixture into a 13 × 9 inch pan coated with cooking spray. Sprinkle sprinkles on top.

4 Allow rice cereal to cool for about 10–15 minutes and then cut into 2- to 3-inch squares.

5 Separate Oreos, trying to keep the cream on one side of the cookie.

6 Using gel icing, glue the opened Oreo to the center top of the rice cereal treat. The cream side should be facing you. Apply a black dot of gel in the center of the cream to create an eyeball.

Excerpted from "Kids' Treats: 50 Easy, Extra-Special Snacks to Make with Your Little Ones" by Katie Wylie and published by F+W Media Inc. Used with permission of the publisher.

CANDY CORN MARSHMELLOWS

These Candy Corn Marshmallows make a superfun nibble for any candy-seeking trick-or-treaters, and your kids will love them, too.

Ingredients:

Yields 12 Candy Corn Marshmallows

- ½ cup orange chocolate candy melts
- 12 marshmallows
- ½ cup yellow chocolate candy melts
- ½ cup brown chocolate candy melts

Directions:

1 Melt orange chocolate candy melts in a candy melting electric pot according to the package instructions, or in the microwave in 30-second increments.

2 Dip the bottom half of marshmallows into the orange chocolate

3 Place marshmallows in refrigerator until chocolate hardens, approximately 5 minutes.

4 Melt yellow and brown chocolates as in Step 1. Dip the bottom of orange-covered marshmallow in the yellow chocolate halfway to create a candy corn look. Place in refrigerator until chocolate has hardened, approximately 2–3 minutes.

5 Using a toothpick or the bottom end of a cake-decorating paintbrush and brown chocolate candy melts, dot two eyes on your candy corn. Place marshmallows on parchment paper and place in refrigerator until chocolate has hardened.

Aries Greater financial freedom should be your goal. List your expenses and go over your personal papers in order to find a way to save money.

Taurus You will get back what you give out. If you are demanding or stubborn, you can expect to face opposition. Be helpful and agreeable.

Gemini You will be rewarded for your dedication. Don't slack off just because your colleagues are doing less than you are.

Cancer If you share your concepts with peers and friends, you'll discover a way to turn something you enjoy doing into a paying gig.

Leo A personal struggle is apparent. Don't try to pretend that nothing is wrong. An honest will help you to find a workable solution.

Virgo Change is heading your way. A partnership will undergo a transformation, and a joint venture or collaboration looks promising.

Libra Consider a career move. Gather information and stay current with the trends happening in your preferred field. Update your resume.

Scorpio Personal matters need to be put aside. Plan to have a relaxing day or get involved in something that will take your mind off troublesome concerns.

Sagittarius Identify the improvements you need to make around your home. Anything that adds to your enjoyment should be seriously considered.

Capricorn Attend a lecture or trade show in order to keep your credentials up to date. As an added bonus, you will meet others who share your interests.

Aquarius Speak your mind, but make sure your facts are correct and your delivery precise. Go over the details and leave no room for error.

Pisces When in doubt, you should follow your intuition. Traveling and experiencing cultural differences will inspire you. EUGENIA LAST

Be scary, not sorry

Halloween isn't until next Saturday, but these parties are sure to sell out. Commit to skipping the trick-or-treating and get your tickets now for a scary good grown-up time. EVA KIS

Webster Hall

Oct. 31, 8 p.m.
Webster Hall
$85, must be 19+

The official afterparty of the Village Halloween Parade is guaranteed to be the freakiest night in town. To impress its crowd of hardcore Halloween enthusiasts, Webster Hall is living up to its turn-of-the-century reputation as the Devil's Playground by holding a "virgin sacrifice," deploying zombie acrobats and promising an appearance by Lucifer himself.

The Last Ball

Oct. 30, 11:55 p.m.-5:15 a.m.
Diamond Horseshoe
Email info@babelnewyork.com

What used to be a drawing room for Hollywood luminaries is now home to the city's sexiest immersive theater production, "Queen of the Night," and all that creative energy is sure to combine into something spectacular at this pre-Halloween bash. DJ Tennis, Job Jobse and Bedouin will be spinning, and costumes are mandatory. Avoid the usual though — opulence is the order of the night.

Inferno

Oct. 30 & 31, 10 p.m.
The McKittrick Hotel
$70-$335

We can only imagine how the Halloween spirit influences the already moody "Sleep No More," which you can see before the party. Or you can just arrive for the deviant witchcraft. Dress your occult best; if you're not a worshipper of earthly magic, then all black will do. There's also an open bar, live music by guest DJs and "specially crafted entertainment." The Heath is also serving a special menu.

Pier of Fear

Oct. 31, 9 p.m.
Pier 94
$85-$150, 18+

Get a haunted house and the ultimate dance party in one event, which happens to be New York City's biggest of Halloween night, starring Skrillex and Marshmello. Blood Manor is back after last year's pop-up, with a massive maze of fear (admission is included with your ticket). Stay all the way until the end and you might need to be raised from the dead, but what a way to go.

Emperor's Ball

Oct. 31, 10 p.m.
Marquee
$100+

The theme of Marquee's Halloween night blowout is the Renaissance, so head there if you've ever been curious to see Leonardo da Vinci get down and the Mona Lisa crack a real smile. Puff Daddy (I guess he's going as himself from 15 years ago?) is emceeing, with music by DJs Spade, Mos and Nem and an open bar until midnight courtesy of DeLeón Tequila Ciroc.

You get the windows, we pay the interest

The problems with poor-quality vinyl windows:

- Even through normal temperature changes, poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors can expand, contract, warp and leak.
- If their seals break and the insulating gas escapes, your energy-efficiency goes out the window.

The solution is our Fibrex® window:

- We're the replacement window division of Andersen, and they developed our Fibrex material to meet their superior standards.
- Fibrex is so strong it helps prevent glass movement, seal failure, and discomfort in your home.
- Our Fibrex material is twice as strong as vinyl, and—unlike wood—requires virtually no maintenance.*

These pumpkin treats are no trick

Let this sweet orange

on your face.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

Winking at passersby from every stoop and looming on windowsills, pumpkins are everywhere — including dishes way beyond just pie at restaurants and bars around town.

Downtown Brooklyn's new rooftop Asian beer garden Kimoto doesn't exactly toe the line when it comes to beer hall traditions, and we couldn't be happier. On the menu for fall are Pumpkin Pie Bites with maple syrup, spiced mascarpone and fresh sage created by chef Brian Tsao, who, fun fact, actually started his career as a pastry chef and was part of the winning team at 2007's U.S. Pastry Competition.

When a Pumpkin Spice Latte is not enough, you'll want a Pumpkin Spice Latte macaron to dip into it. The wizards at Dana's Bakery (Gan-sevoort Market) have distilled the essence of fall's staple beverage into one delicious, gluten-free bite (with a center of espresso buttercream!) And forget all the legwork of trick-or-treating: Through the end of the month, pick up a Candy Box Halloween trio featuring Starburst, 3 Musketeers and candy corn-flavored macarons.

Mexican is probably not your first thought when it comes to pumpkin, but the Pumpkin Pie Frozen Margarita at Blockheads (Blockheads.com) combines two things you already love — pumpkin puree and Fireball whiskey — with cinnamon tequila, then adds another kick with lime juice.

Low-key Virginia's (647 E. 11th St.) is named for the coincidentally shared name of the founders' mothers, and it's that homey touch that you'll find in their pumpkin risotto, a rustic dish with porcinis, pecans and tarragon.

This isn't your grandmother's kitchen, though — co-owner Christian Ramos is a former sous chef at Per Se, so expect comfortable but elevated fare.

The newly anointed darling of Michelin and Zagat, Faro (436 Jefferson St., Bushwick) just introduced its Pumpkin Toffee Cake, with icing made the traditional British way by whisking powdered sugar, vanilla and egg whites over a boiler — the result is like liquid marshmallow. Get it anytime, even during their new Sunday brunch that just debuted last weekend.

Beware of werewolves around Union Square's The Fourth (132 Fourth Ave.), where the Full Moon Rising cocktail lives. Mixed with vodka, cognac, pumpkin liqueur, ginger liqueur, lemon and garnished with smoked rosemary, just try to keep from howling at the moon for another round.

There's a whole new fall cocktail lineup at Zuma (261 Madison Ave.) from recently arrived bar manager José Cespedes from Florida, but the one that caught our eye was Beyond the Promenade, which builds a bitter-sweet mix of cinnamon anise syrup and pumpkin puree on a bourbon base.

If you haven't stopped

Sugar Lounge

Yes, "Queen of the Night" is performed while guests eat dinner, but the show will probably leave you feeling in the mood for, ahem, dessert. On Halloween, get access to chef Ryan Dutch's secret autumn-themed dessert lounge at the Diamond Horseshoe after the show to indulge in a one-night-only tasting menu of nothing but treats, like bomboloni filled with uni cream and pumpkin whoopie pies with Madras curry mascarpone cream and pomegranate-poached cranberries. The $300 ticket includes admission to that night's performance.

by the recently opened Corso Coffee (537 W. 27th St.), then this might entice you: It's the only place in Manhattan where you can get a Pumpkin Chai ice cream sandwich made by Brooklyn's The Good Batch. The little shop went through about 1,500 sandwiches a day this summer at Smorgasburg, but at Corso you'll not only skip the long lines, you'll be helping the Hudson River Park Trust — the cafe is donating $1 of each sandwich sold.

FASHION

Manhattan Vintage

Oct. 23-24
Metropolitan Pavilion
125 W. 18th St.
$15, ManhattanVintage.com
Ever look around and wonder how we went from suits and gowns to sweatpants at work in the course of 100 years? Manhattan Vintage is constantly exploring the history of American fashion, and this weekend's show is dedicated to tracing the styles of the past century leading up to today. Clothes will be on display and well as for sale, and experts on hand to discuss them.

COMEDY

'The Meeting'

Oct. 25, 9:30 p.m.
Joe's Pub, 425 Lafayette St.
$20, Joespub.com
You know how people talk about "the gay agenda," as if all homosexuals gather for meetings to form a collective opinion on fashion, Hollywood and Hillary Clinton? Well, the truth is out—and so are the gays, at Justin Sayre's monthly performance of "The Meeting of the International Order of Sodomites." Each show features a roster of special guests, and this month will be an homage to the Halloween cult classic "Practical Magic."

Discover the highlights of Vietnam's attractive capital, where 200-year-old temples sit alongside contemporary art galleries, and hidden cafes take you back in time.

To experience one of the city's most compelling curiosities, you'll need to set your alarm. Head to Hoan Kiem Lake at around 6 a.m. and follow your ears to the laughing yoga group where young and old gather to erupt in sidesplitting laughter as infectious as it is bizarre. No trip to Hanoi is complete without the breakfast classic, pho noodle soup. A short walk away at 61 Dinh Tien Hoang is a no-nonsense pho thin joint where pots of fragrant broth simmer. Unlike most places in Hanoi, the din of chatter is noticeably absent here — the locals forgoing banter in favor of focused slurping.

There are few cities in the world that can challenge Hanoi for coffee shop density, and one of the oldest, Cafe Dinh (13 Dinh Tien Hoang), is also one of the best-hidden, squirrelled away above a luggage shop. A visit here is like stepping back in time. The tiniest of tiny stools are lined up against the walls, on which old black-and-white photographs of Hanoi hang. Make like a local and order the house speciality, egg coffee (ca phe trung), a rich and creamy cup of sweet caffeine goodness.

Tran Quoc Pagoda

Next, it's time to brave the Old Quarter, a warren of streets that were once all allied to a guild. Grab a map and weave your way from south to north. If the constant flow of motorbikes isn't your thing, hail a cyclo and haggle a price (pay what you think seems fair).

Next stop is Manzi, a cafe and exhibition space that plays an important role in Hanoi's burgeoning contemporary arts scene. Run by the inimitable and welcoming Tram, Manzi has a mellow ambiance, and upstairs, a great shop sells the work of local and international artists.

Reinvigorated, wander to Truc Bach and try the area's speciality, pho cuon (beef and herbs rolled in thin sheets of noodle) on Ngu Xa Street.

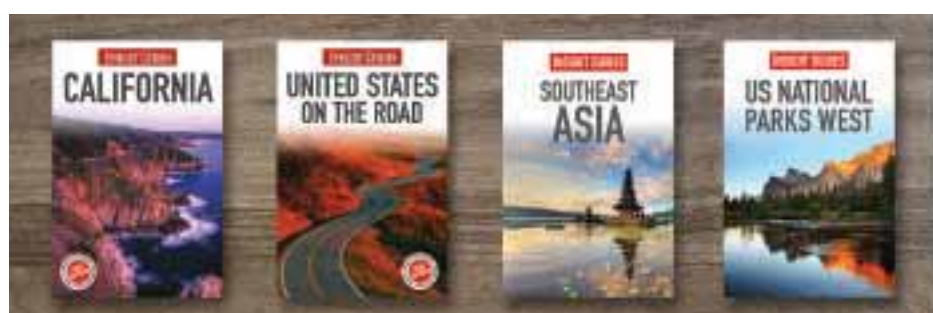

Continue to the shore of Ho Tay Lake along Thanh Nien Street past a monument where John McCain was shot down. The beautiful sanctuary of Tran Quoc Pagoda sits on a small promontory, and the nearby Quan Thanh Pagoda is another atmospheric hideaway.

For dinner, seek out the quirky, railway track-side Ray Quan, but be warned, the rice wine menu is long and lethal. Round out your day at Tadioto, the capital's most cosmopolitan and probably most dangerous bar, thanks in no small part to owner Duc, a poet, artist and all-round Hanoi arts-scene stalwart. Tadioto attracts a colorful mix of the capital's denizens, so pull up a stool, fall into conversation, and eek the very most out of your 24 Hanoian hours.

World Series-bound

The Mets are in the Fall Classic for the first time in 15 years.

MATT BURKE
@burke_metro
matthew.burke@metro.us

Games 5, 6 and 7 of the 2015 World Series are scheduled to be played in November. With the way the Mets are playing right now, however, this baseball season will be wrapped up on Halloween night and the main event on NYC's early November calendar will simply be a parade down the Canyon of Heroes.

The Mets continued to steamroll the "competition" Wednesday night, completing a four-game sweep of the Chicago Cubs in the NLCS with an 8-3 win. Game 1 of the World Series is slated for next Tuesday night against the Blue Jays or Royals. Kansas City leads the ALCS, 3-2, with Game 6 set for Friday night at KC. The Mets' first ever World Series home game at Citi Field will be Game 3 and will take place on Friday, Oct. 30.

The Mets left little doubt as to what team was the best in the National League Wednesday at Wrigley as they were up 6-0 midway through the second and 8-1 after another improbable Daniel Murphy home run. Murphy's two-run blast to center in the eighth inning made MLB history as the Mets' second baseman became the first player ever to hit a home run in six straight postseason games. The incredible Murphy had four hits on the night.

Early on, Lucas Duda clubbed a Jason Hammel offering over the center field bricks for a three-run home run and sent the Wrigley crowd into full "here-we-go-again" mode. Travis D'Arnaud cemented the mood in the first inning as he homered to right center field in the very next at-bat.

Mets starter Steven Matz was also sensational. The 24-year-old lefty worked into the fifth inning, allowing just one earned run on four hits. He struck out four and walked two on 76 pitches.

NHL power rankings | by Rich Slate

No. 1

Canadiens (7-0)

This might be the easiest top choice in the history of power rankings. Not only is Montreal off to its best start in franchise history but it is already sporting a ridiculous plus-16 goal-differential. The Habs have only allowed seven goals.

No. 2

Stars (5-1)

Nobody expected this and for good reason, it is probably fool's gold. Still, the Stars are playing really well to begin this season. They have reeled off four straight victories after a 2-1 win at Philadelphia on Tuesday and they are the top team in the Western Conference.

No. 3

Predators (5-1)

Right now, the three best teams in the West all reside in the Central. The Stars, Predators and Blues each have 10 points. Nashville is 3-0-0 at Bridgestone Arena thanks to an entertaining 5-4 shootout win over the Lightning on Tuesday.

No. 4

Islanders (4-1-1)

Other than the Canadiens, the Islanders are the hottest team in the Eastern Conference. New York has won four straight games. Since they are two of the best teams in the East, the Islanders-Rangers rivalry should reach another level of excitement and intensity this season.

No. 5

Rangers (4-2-1)

New York picked up its best win of the young season on Monday, blanking the San Jose Sharks, 4-0, at Madison Square Garden. The Rangers have a relatively easy stretch coming up: vs. Coyotes, at Flyers, vs. Flames and vs. Maple Leafs.

No. 6

Lightning (4-2-1)

In terms of quality opponents, Tampa Bay might currently be on the toughest road trip of the season in the NHL. After Tuesday's loss in Nashville, the Lightning head to Winnipeg, Chicago and St. Louis. They come home for two games at the end of October.

No. 7

Blues (5-2)

If they were in any other division, the Blues would likely be one of the best teams (at least record-wise) in the league. Instead, they will probably be one of six teams in the Central just battling for a playoff spot. St. Louis hasn't been home since Opening Night.

No. 8

Capitals (4-1)

The Capitals are rolling. They have won three straight games including a 6-2 win at Calgary on Tuesday that led the Flames to put goaltender Karri Ramo on waivers. Washington wraps up its trip to Canada with two more games this week.

No. 9

Jets (4-2)

After a busy stretch to start this campaign, the Jets have been off since Sunday (a 4-2 loss to St. Louis) and don't play again until Friday vs. Tampa Bay. Winnipeg has scored 20 goals, the second most in the West behind the Stars and Blues.

No. 10

Sharks (4-2)

To nobody's surprise, the Sharks have come back down to Earth after their 4-0-0 start. Thursday vs. the Kings at SAP Center is a sneaky big game since LA has regained a bit of its form after a terrible beginning to the season. The good news is that it's still very early.

No. 11

Canucks (3-1-2)

Much like the Sharks, this is more of the reality when it comes to the Canucks this season. Losing 2-1 Sunday in overtime to the Oilers was a sobering moment for Vancouver. They have Washington, Detroit and Montreal at home coming up.

RUNNING OUT OF PATIENCE

The zero-RB truthers have their chests puffed out again.

For the third straight year, more than half of the running backs selected in the first two rounds are hurting their owners. In 2014, it was LeSean McCoy, Montee Ball, Gio Bernard and Arian Foster. In 2013, Foster, Doug Martin, Ray Rice, C.J. Spiller, Trent Richardson and Steven Jackson all tanked. Is it over for this year's group and the prioritization of the position as a whole?

A shift in the game

For those not living in our pathetic little fantasy football bubble, "zero-RB" refers to a drafting strategy in which you purposefully avoid running backs in the first four rounds or so. It's growing more and more viable every year. The vast majority of NFL teams run some kind of committee now and running backs have the highest injury rates in the league. Meanwhile, all of the NFL's recent rule changes skew toward inflated passing stats. Philip Rivers is on pace to set the record for passing yards in a season, DeAndre Hopkins is going to smash the mark for targets and a whopping six wideouts are averaging at least 100 yards per game.

The 2015 bust group

Owners of Jamaal Charles, Eddie Lacy, Marshawn Lynch, C.J. Anderson and Jeremy Hill are already well behind the eight-ball. There's varying degrees of hope here. Obviously, Charles owners got unlucky with the ACL tear. But owners of Lacy, Anderson, Hill and Lynch shouldn't be

ADAM LEVITAN

FANTASY SPORTS

Adam Levitan is a Fantasy Sports columnist for Metro US. He is also a DraftKings analyst and co-host of The Daily Fantasy Football Edge podcast. @AdamLevitan afraid to sit their "studs" down. Lacy is clearly out of shape and is getting outplayed by James Starks, Lynch's offensive line is a disaster, Anderson has been passed by Ronnie Hillman and Jeremy Hill looks like a shell of his rookie-year self. There are complementary wideouts and passing backs that have higher weekly ceilings right now.

Sneaky stashes at RB

One key to the zero-RB theory is to take cheap upside shots at the position. For example, hoarding Christine Michael on your bench ever since the Dallas trade, or stashing Todd Gurley through the injury. Some deep sleeper running backs that could emerge later include Buck Allen, David Cobb, Ahmad Bradshaw and Knile Davis. They're available in most leagues but are just one injury away from big roles.

NFL news

Melvin Gordon's rookie year has been one to forget. The 15th overall pick is averaging 3.83 YPC, has scored zero touchdowns, ranks 42nd of 55 in PFF's run grades and was benched in Week 6 after fumbling for the fourth time. Part of the trouble stems from offensive line injuries, but Gordon has to take blame for indecision at the line and ball security. He's best left on fantasy benches until he puts something in the box score and gains the trust of his team back. Meanwhile, the run game's ineffectiveness has Philip Rivers on a record pace.

Match game

Be sure to fire up these borderline wideouts in Week 7. Michael Floyd is a good bet against Baltimore. Floyd's snap and target count are both rising sharply ahead of a matchup with the league's worst pass defense.

Week 7 studs

Some top adds ahead of NFL Week 7:

Christine Michael, RB, Cowboys — Has been ahead of Joseph Randle at practice.

Stefon Diggs, WR, Vikings — Has surpassed the disappointing Charles Johnson.

Brandon LaFell, WR, Patriots — Will quickly take back an every-down outside role.

Vincent Jackson at Washington is another good pick. The Bucs aren't going to be able to run on the Redskins, forcing Jameis Winston to the air often.

Last but not least is Willie Snead at Indianapolis. Per PFF, Snead runs 41 percent of his routes from the slot and 31 percent on the right side. That means he'll usually avoid Vontae Davis.

Don't be shy about sitting Eddie Lacy until there are signs of improvement. GETTY IMAGES
